The Journal of Wednesday announced that Thos. J. Stone, a Sioux City pioneer of '56, had suddenly passed away at about 11:20 Tuesday night, April 13, 1904. Mr. Stone was well known to the people of Dakota county in a business way, and because he was a member of the Pioneers and Old Settlers' association, and has been present at every annual reunion for years. But few of the pioneers have taken a greater interest in the association or enjoyed its meetings more than he has. We will miss him. He had done much to build up Sioux city and this northwestern country. He has done his part. The Herald tenders its sympathy to Mrs. Stone, who has many times been with us at our annual meetings and at one time read an original poem entitled "Our Departed Pioneers," and the sentiments therein expressed apply well now to Mrs. Stone. Mr. Stone was born in Niagara county, New York, August 13, 1825, and settled in Sioux City in 1855. He and his wife had spent the evening at the meeting of the Sioux City Academy of Science and Letters, of which Hon. John Charles is honorary president, Hon. Geo. W. Wakefield acting president and Hon. T. J. Stone last vice president. Those present little thought that one of their number would be called home within a few minutes after the close of the meeting.

COBURN ITEMS.

E H Gribble shipped a car of hogs to Sioux City Saturday. Fred Berman marketed the last of his domesticated buffalo in Sioux City Monday. John Critz and Geo Bates transacted business here Wednesday. Mr and Mrs W H Boals and son Ray went to Ponca Saturday morning to spend several weeks with relatives in Dixon county. Mrs O W Fiesler went up to Ponca Saturday evening, returning the first of the week. Mrs J W Bridenbough and two children went to Hartington Wednesday. Joe Nelson was shopping over in the city Wednesday. L Root planted his potatoes the first of the week. Since the resignation of Mayor Crouch the railroad company will probably have use for their steam pump here. Miss Bertha Lamb returned to Sioux City Friday. She visited the Misses Leasing the past week. P M Boals spent Sunday at home. The Skidmore Wagon Scale Company. E. M. St. Claire, of Mitchell, S. D., and P. S. Champlin, of Elk Point, have purchased a half interest in the Skidmore Wagon Scale, and a company has been organized under the name and style of the Skidmore Wagon Scale Company, temporarily to be at Homer, but where the final place of operation will be has not been yet decided. Chas. Skidmore is to be president; Mr. St. Claire, vice president; Henry Skidmore, treasurer and Mr. Champlin, secretary. The company expects to go to work immediately at Homer. They have a large number of orders out now and more coming in all the time. They will decide soon, and after they have agreed on a location will build extensively, and will commence to operate on a large scale. The machine only weighs about 65 pounds, and is attached to the wagon. The price of a two ton scale is $25.00, and a four ton scale is $35.00. It seems to be a wonderful invention, and the company has ample means to operate the business. Mr. Skidmore reserves fifty cents of the price of every machine sold for the Lord. He says the Lord helped him to invent the scale, and he considers him a partner, and entitled to an interest in the business. There is nothing like it in the United States nor any of the countries where it has been patented, and its sale will be practically unlimited. The members of the company were all in town on Thursday and signed the contract for the sale of the half interest. The second annual commencement of the school of agriculture of the state university was held last night, (Friday) at library hall. The largest class in the history of the school received certificates. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Storma, president of Iowa state college at Ames. His subject was "By-Products." Max Bille, a Dakota county boy now of Palo Alto, California, son of Ex-County Clerk Bille was among the number. John Johnson and wife and Harry arrived at their destination all right, though Mr. Johnson was very sick the second night, and kept his birth all day, but the following morning he was fully recovered. They report that they will never forget the kind care they received from Dakota City people. Coon Thorn and wife, who reside west of Homer, were in town on business Thursday. Mr. Thorn's horses ran away the other day with a die and injured one of the horses so badly that it had to be killed. It was a severe loss to Mr. Thorn. We had quite a hail storm on Thursday afternoon. Some of the stones were as big as walnuts, but there was no wind at the time and no damage so far as we have heard. A J Sides is confined to his room with grip and rheumatism. It is thought that warm weather and sunshine will soon bring him back to his accustomed vigor. Dulcie and Bessie Leedom of Hubbard, spent Sunday with their grandparents, Cal J F Leedom and wife.

HUBBARD.

Myers Bros shipped two cars of hogs last Tuesday. George Hayes topped the market with a car of hogs on Monday. The dance announced for last Thursday evening has been postponed until next week. Dick Rockwell was a representative of this precinct at the republican county convention Thursday. James Hartnett has built himself a new fence around his horse yard. It shows up well from the train. Mabel Shea, cousin of Michael Green, who has been visiting here for some time, has returned to her home in Milwaukee. Joe Leedom, the impressable Joe, Hubbard's wide-awake livery man has been driving a traveling man over the country for a few days. Will Duggan has been appointed postmaster at Hubbard in place of Miss McPartland, resigned. The latter will leave here for Omaha soon as she is relieved, to the home of her aunt. Mrs. John Biko died the latter part of last week at her home. She has been poorly of late. She was about 73 years old and has been a resident of the county for a good many years. She was buried in what is generally known as the Way cemetery. She was a hard working woman, and held in high esteem. She leaves her husband, one son and four or five daughters. Mrs. Henry Ebel and Mrs. John Sierk are daughters living in this county. John C. Smith got aboard the train this morning for Dakota City. He was a delegate to the republican county convention Thursday. Mrs. Frost, mention of whose sickness has appeared in the Herald several times heretofore, passed away Wednesday morning about three o'clock. This event was not unlooked for and yet a great shock to her friends. She was born in the neighborhood of Hubbard, and was 27 years old. She is the sixth of the John Rooney family to pass away of the original eleven. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rooney, pioneers of the county, her husband, one brother and four sisters survive her. The funeral was held yesterday at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Catholic church, Rev. Fr. English, officiating. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the young husband in his great loss, and the other surviving members of the family. Gilda Sayre has moved into the Haase house, formerly occupied by him, and his son-in-law Frank Bookhart and family are occupying the same house.

PLEASANT AND MOST EFFECTIVE.

T. J. Chambers, Ed. Vindicator, Liberty, Texas, writes Dec. 5, 1902: "With pleasure and unhesitatingly, I bear testimony to the curative power of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. I have used it in my family and can cheerfully affirm it is the most effective and pleasant remedy for coughs and colds I have ever used." 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by G W McBeath.

GOOD Short Stories

A New England school teacher resorted to her pupils "The Landing of the Pilgrims," then asked each of them to draw from their imagination a picture of Plymouth Rock. They all started to work except one little fellow, who hesitated, then at length raised his hand. "Well, Willie, what is it?" asked the teacher. "Please, ma'am, do you want us to draw a hen or a rooster?"

Recently a fellow with a patent air brake caught James Keene, the financier, in a corner. "Mr. Keene, this is a wonderful thing. My special contrivance, as you perceive, will keep the air in. Don't you think the market will snap at it?" "Young man," answered Keene, "it may be all you say. But what the market wants is not something to keep the air in, but something to keep the water out."

Dr. Bird was once the guest of Captain Burton, the explorer, and one night, when Burton had been telling of an Arab attack which ended fatally for his assailant, the doctor provoked from him one of the most perfect retorts ever made at a doctor's expense. "How do you feel, captain, when you kill a man?" said he. Burton paused a moment, and then replied, slowly: "I don't know, doctor. How do you?"

Senator Tillman tells of a South Carolina trial in which the prisoner, accused of burglary, was cleared by a strong alibi, amply supported by witnesses. After the trial, the judge told the friends who were congratulating the successful lawyer, and said: "That was an excellent alibi you provided." "Yes," said the lawyer: "I thought pretty well of it. It was easily the best of the four that were offered to me."

Secretary Shaw's decision that frogs are poultry, and subject to duty, recalls the story of the passenger and a guard on an English railway car, who were having a heated discussion over whether the traveler should pay fare on a dog that accompanied him, the guard insisting that the rules of the road demanded that the animal have a ticket. Another passenger produced a turtle from his pocket, and sarcastically asked the guard if he would not require a fare to be paid for that animal as well. The guard answered that he would inquire and report later. Soon after he came back to the carriage and delivered himself of the following: "Cats is dogs, and rabbits is dogs, but tortoises is frogs, and frogs is bluseets, and they rides free."

Senator Hoar lately told an incident of his legal practice in connection with his remarks about the dangerous condition of the old government printing office. "I am reminded," said he, "of something that happened in the Supreme Court of our State some years ago. They held court at Northampton, and went over to Mt. Holyoke, where there is an elevator which takes travelers up the side of a steep rock a hundred or two hundred feet to avoid the difficulty of climbing. The judges, as judges are apt to be, were, nearly all of them, rather corpulent men. Six or seven got into the elevator at once. They saw that the rope that held the car in which they went was very much frayed, and they asked the manager if he did not think it was a little unsafe. 'Yes,' the manager said, 'it is wholly unsafe and likely to break every minute, but we are going to have a new one next Monday.'"

BIRD LIFE IN HAWAII.

Many Species Will Disappear or Fly to Inaccessible Heights. From some of the open pastures rises the song of the skylark, which was imported from New Zealand; skylarks increase in number, but not very quickly. The voice of the Chinese turtle dove—the mourning dove, it is called—is heard in the land quite near to the valley homes; also the upward whirr of the Mongolian and the Japanese pheasant. Grouse and quail—the California valley quail—were there until lately, but the latter have now betaken themselves to heights of 6,000 to 7,000 feet, with the marauding mongoose cannot follow them. I asked a young niece of my own who lately left Honolulu what birds visited their grounds three miles up the valley road, and she tells me, "Java sparrows, rice birds and those squawking mynars. The last cut up all our young figs and grapes, unless we throw the tennis nets over them. The natives call the mynars manu al play; that is, 'bird who eats fish.' He does some good, then, as well as ill. That watching of birds which is essential to a knowledge of their life history has indeed been impossible to most visitors to Hawaii. And now that annexation is giving an impetus to the development of the country's resources, the inevitable destruction of its forests, even if the birds themselves do not perish with the trees that sheltered and fed them, is driving them up to still more inaccessible heights and wooded depths between the sharp volcanic peaks, which will baffle the hardest climber.—Blackwood's Magazine.

RURALES OF MEXICO.

Splendid Horsemen Who Patrol Highways of the Interior. The rurales are to Mexico what the famous guardia civil is to Spain and it needed the genius and administrative power of the man who at present holds the reins of government to conceive the formation and equipment of the picturesque horsemen whose appearance in Mexico's military parades always elicits the applause of spectators. These rural police—for such they are—never fail to attract attention of both foreigners and natives alike. Like the guardia civil of Spain the rurales patrol the remote mountain tracts of Guerrero and Michoacan and the great plains of the "mocha central" in couples or parejas—and many a lonely traveler or prospector has been gladdened by the sight of their gray uniforms (the leather-embroidered jacket is only used on parade occasions) amidst the wild rugged scenery of the Pacific coast in regions where not a soul is to be seen for days and days. Their company is a real pleasure, as they are the best hosts the traveler on the Mexican high road could have. It is notable that they are invariably pleased to meet English-speaking people and will frequently travel miles out of their own route to put an "extrajero" on the right track when on a bewildering maze of bridle paths. The equipment of the rurales is Mexican in every respect, and in this they differ from the regular army, whose uniforms and accoutrements are adapted largely from the French. The horses used by these men are of the finest and their riders are born to the saddle. The "silla vaquera" or Mexican cowboy saddle in use is by far the most practical and easiest for the long and wearisome marches they take through atrociously rough country. The origin of the "silla vaquera" is peculiar, and its ancient prototype may be traced further back than is known to most visitors. In the first instance, the saddle in use today in this country is an adaptation made by the old Spaniards of the "silla vaquera de Andalucia" in Spain, and there is no difficulty in recognizing this by a comparison of those used by the Spanish "planderos" in the bull ring. The same high cantle and horn is in evidence, the stirrups in the latter case being of iron, with a "anagadera," or covering, to the right one, being the side on which the bulls attack the rider. The lano, or lariat, for roping bulls, is not used in Spain, but came into use in her colonies, and with this the necessity for a different-shaped saddle arose, and then the "silla Mexicana," with its peculiarly shaped horn for securing the "lano," was evolved. This same saddle is now in use throughout the Western States of America and the Californian and Texan stock saddles are the outcome. As regards the "silla vaquera" of Andalusia, its origin, as in the other customs in that southern country, is distinctly Moorish and the Riffs and Berbers use something almost identical in pattern. The convenience of the Mexican saddle is recognized by all travelers in this country, and its good qualities received proper recognition when the Sultan of Morocco sent for one through Kaid Maclean, his Scotch adviser. A splendid specimen of the saddler's art was sent out recently to his serene highness of Morocco from this city by a gentleman whose knowledge of things Mexican is irreproachable, and the saddle is at present in use.

EPIDEMIC OF LOST MEMORIES.

Strange Stories of "Word Blindness" in Healthy Persons. "What are the causes of apparently healthy persons suddenly losing their identity?" was a question which a celebrated brain specialist dealt with yesterday in the hope that the results of his researches and his advice might prove of benefit to the public. The physician recalled some remarkable cases of what are known as "physical changes," which have recently come to his notice, including the experience of a gentleman who a few days ago entered the record office in Chancery lane and announced to an astonished official that "he did not know who he was, as he had lost his memory."

Another case was that of a young lady who wandered from her home at Cleaton to Finsbury, a distance of thirty miles, and furnished to the police at the latter place a name which she "thought" to be her father's. A telegram, however, sent to that address was returned "unknown."

A third illustration of these curious psychological phenomena was that of a clergyman who, after withdrawing from his bank a substantial sum of money with which to complete the purchase of a piece of land, entered a tramway car. From that moment his mind became a blank, and he wandered 200 miles to a large town, where with the money he bought a stationer's shop and erected a sign bearing the name of "Brown."

After six weeks a customer entered, and addressing the man behind the counter as "Mr. Brown," asked to be supplied with some small articles of stationery. The proprietor replied that his name was not Brown, but Bourne, and that he knew nothing about the business.

"The man had suddenly awakened from his prolonged lapse of memory," added the physician.—London Mail.

FAMILY INSPECTION VISIT.

Great Order in a Girl's Life Before Her Marriage. One of the most trying things in a girl's life is what we may call the "inspection visit" to the family of the man to whom she has engaged herself. It is much more comfortable when the two families know each other. If not, a visit is arranged. If the distance between the two homes is not too great, the mother or sisters of the fiance call on the prospective bride and she returns this call within a week. But if a long railway journey intervenes, the family of the intending bridegroom writes to the girl immediately on receiving the news, inviting her to come and pay them a visit. On one such occasion the engaged girl said: "I felt so nervous when we got near the house that I should have fainted to scream, but when I suddenly saw that poor George was quite as nervous as myself, I grew quite calm and self-possessed. I determined that his people should not think he had chosen a silly girl who could do nothing but shake like a blanc-mange and chatter her teeth." The fiance feels even more nervous than a man who has just bought a horse and has it trotted up and down before a party of critical acquaintances. But the girl he could not sell if he would, and probably would not if he could. Truly, the inspection visit is trying, though extremely interesting; for, in addition to all the above-mentioned queries, the fiance also "wonders" what his betrothed will think about his people.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A man may not be perfect, but when he is with his wife she thinks he isn't very far from perfection.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

A Curse of Religion.—One of the curses of religion is that so many people are merely the shells of Christianity.—Rev. W. F. Sheridan, Methodist, Louisville, Ky.

The Golden Calf.—We have danced around the golden calf in America until we have almost come to worship the man who steals the most.—Rev. C. Myers, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Which?—It depends on whether a man loves the comfort of his family or his cups whether he is a blessing or a burden to his family.—Rev. M. N. Preston, Congregationalist, Chicago, Ill.

The Armor of God.—The half-hearted Christian is not happy, but the man who has on the happy armor of God is the one who rejoices along the way.—Rev. W. P. Bryan, Methodist, Dallas, Texas.

The Will.—All emotion can and ought to be controlled by the will. This is the divine truth. Whoso believeth shall be saved.—Rev. Frank Crane, Congregationalist, Worcester, Mass.

Simplicity.—Learn to live simple, in body, in mind, in spirit and in multitude of burdens shall slip from your soul, and you shall know the meaning of rest.—Rev. F. O. Hall, Universalist, New York City.

Creed.—It is better to have a good human creed than to have no creed, but better still to have a divine creed which is a personal faith in a personal Christ.—Rev. M. E. Harlan, Disciple, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Genius.—Most geniuses are queer as they are great. Emphasis of one's virtue is very likely to destroy oneself. A great philosopher can scarcely be a great statesman.—Rev. G. Van de Water, Episcopalian, New York City.

Order.—Nature is always orderly, and this is one of the same reasons why she is never superfluous; she has a good system, and, therefore, is always correct in her movements.—Rev. H. A. Tupper, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Harmony.—Place the home, the church, the state, upon one high level, in harmony with each other. This is the ideal, and this is the rule of an all-around noble and secure manhood.—Rev. A. J. Lyman, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Kingdom.—Wherever God reigns in a human soul there His kingdom is. The weakest Christian, if he be a true son of the kingdom, has all the power of God enlisted in his behalf.—Rev. S. S. Palmer, Presbyterian, Columbus, Ohio.

Peace.—If for a moment we obtain what we have sought and are elated with the thought that we possess peace, it needs only a reverse to show us how false and spurious and evanescent such peace is.—Rev. Charles Wood, Presbyterian, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dual Selves.—Every man is dual in the constitution of his mind. In other words, every man is possessed of two selves—an inner self and an outer self. In theology these two selves are called the spiritual man and the natural man.—Rev. T. A. King, Swedenborgian, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Savior.—The ignorant need a teacher. The wandering need a guide. The lost soul needs a savior. Error can be reasoned away, evil habit can be reformed away. The stain of sin can only be whitened by sacrificial blood.—Rev. Howard Duffield, Presbyterian, New York City.

Help and Cheer.—The Bible is much more than a great literary monument with which every student or writer of English literature must have close acquaintance. It is a perennial fountain of moral and religious inspiration, help and cheer.—Rev. J. W. Chadwick, Unitarian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Charity.—If the men who have money only knew the worth of money, and instead of wasting their substance in riotous living or in ostentatious extravagance would use it for the mitigation of the misery that is withering all around them.—Rev. P. S. Henson, Baptist, Boston, Mass.

The Heart.—The heart brings men together into loving fellowship. It is the summer of the soul. In its gentle radiance all sweet and beautiful things come to their lovely perfection. There the graces flourish in all their charm. Where the heart is there men love to dwell. The great-hearted man is of necessity beloved.—Rev. G. K. Morris, Methodist, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Higher Court.—Christianity is the sanest and grandest conception of human life yet given to the world. Her standards are higher than any other, and they alone have resulted in the purifying and sanctifying of the body and the regeneration of the mind. To Christianity men must look for the supreme tribunal of the soul.—Rev. C. E. McNally, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Labor Unions.—The labor people must unite or be crushed, and they have the right to do so. The trusts are inevitable. If the associations of the great masses of capital are necessary, they can only be met and dealt with by the wider association of the toilers in their employ.—Rev. W. S. Rainsford, Episcopalian, New York City.

Stunted.—Mrs. Subbubs—That family that just moved in next door has quite a cute baby but it's awfully small. Mr. Subbubs—Well, dear, what can you expect? The poor little thing posied the first six months of its life in a city flat.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Another Glass Truist.—All the glass manufacturers in Belgium are uniting in a trust "in order to oppose the demand of the labor unions for wages and to obtain better selling prices in foreign markets."

A PURGATIVE PLEASURE.

If you ever took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness or constipation you know what a purgative pleasure it is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken but give tone and strength to the tissues and organs involved. W. H. Howell of Houston, Texas, says: "No better pill can be used than Little Early Risers for constipation, sick headache, etc." Sold by G. W. McBeath.

IMPERFECT DIGESTION

Means less nutrition and in consequence less vitality. When the liver fails to secrete bile, the blood becomes loaded with billions of bacteria, the digestion becomes impaired and the bowels constipated. Herbine will rectify this; it gives tone to the stomach, liver and kidneys, strengthens the appetite, clears and improves the complexion, infuses new life and vigor to the whole system 50c a bottle. Sold by G. W. McBeath.

THE GENUINE VS. COUNTERFEITS.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. S. Leedom of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by G. W. McBeath.

I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a medicine for throat or lung trouble." 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by G. HEALTH

"I don't think we could keep house without Theford's Black-Draught. We have used it in the family for over 20 years with the best of results. I have not had a doctor in the house for that length of time. It is a doctor in itself and always ready to make a person well and happy."—JAMES HALL, Jacksonville, Ill.

No DOCTOR

is necessary in the home where Theford's Black-Draught is kept. Families living in the country, miles from any physician, have been kept in health for years with this medicine as their only doctor. Theford's Black-Draught cures biliousness, dyspepsia, colds, chills and fever, bad blood, headaches, diarrhoea, constipation, colic and almost every other ailment because the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys so neatly control the health.
